All good with this - thanks for the work

Hi Scott

I've drafted the below talking points with the help of Sharyn & Mick.

Released under FOI

- Dealing with consumer law issues that impact on Indigenous Australians is an enduring priority for the ACCC.
- The ACCC views as serious misleading claims that give the impression that products or art are produced by Indigenous Australians when they are not. Such misleading claims have the potential to impact not just customers, who think they are buying genuine handmade Indigenous art or products, but they also have the potential to undermine the integrity of Indigenous art and negatively impact Indigenous artists, including by undervaluing or trivialising their authentic works. Furthermore, passing off for commercial gain artwork or cultural objects as being hand-painted or made by Indigenous Australians may be considered within Indigenous Australian communities to be culturally demeaning.
- The ACCC is able to address misleading conduct involving both express or implied representations. Implied representations may arise when the product is painted in a traditional Indigenous style, contains some form of representation as to 'hand painted' or 'hand crafted' or reference to Indigenous Australia, but has no information as to its true country of origin.
- The ACCC has a history of action in this area. [REDACTED] we considered several allegations of such conduct and commenced proceedings against one trader. That matter is before the court. We continue to investigate further allegations and may take further action in the second half of this year.
- [REDACTED] and will look to leverage off outcomes in current matters to try to address this kind of conduct in the industry.

One thing we queried is the line you had in your draft talking points below: "There is sometimes a difference between the sale of products which are not genuine Indigenous products and express or implied representations of Indigenous production." We weren't sure exactly what you were intending by that statement, so we've left it out of the above talking points (on the basis that if we didn't fully understand, then 60 Minutes would likely not understand). However I'm happy to add something back in if you are able to clarify what was intended.

[REDACTED]

Let me know if you have any queries or changes.

Thanks Nick.

Pleased to keep this quite simple and perhaps take from current talking points but try to keep a bit more conversational given format. But along lines:

Released under FOI

- The ACCC has an enduring priority to deal with consumer law issues impacting on Indigenous Australians,
- Misleading claims that give the impression that products or art is produced by Indigenous Australians when they are not are serious and have the potential to impact not just customers but also Indigenous artists and more generally their culture [perhaps look at words in the Birubi MR]
- There is sometimes a difference between the sale of products which are not genuine Indigenous products and express or implied representations of Indigenous production. The ACCC is able to address conduct when it is misleading.
- The ACCC has a history of action in this area. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] we commenced a number of investigations and commenced proceedings against one trader. That matter is before the court. We have other ongoing investigations and may take further action in the second half of this year.
- [REDACTED] and will look to leverage off outcomes in current matters in lifting the conduct we are seeing in the industry.

Scott – not sure whether you've passed this on, do you want Kate to coordinate?

Kate – if we need to pull something together on this are you able to work this up in conjunction with Shaz, Mick and Lib?

Hi all

I've just heard back from Grace; they've been in the middle of shooting. Good news Delia is we are not needed on camera for an interview at this stage, as I know your schedule is already jam packed at the moment.

Grace would like on the record something to the effect of that we have a number of active investigations into fake Indigenous art (without naming any individual businesses), and we would have concerns where etc etc. She was particularly interested in understanding the law in relation to misleading and deceptive and what we would think that would look like.

Scott, would it be possible for you to ask Melinda's team to draft something they are comfortable with sharing with the program? Not a huge rush, this may go to air the Sunday after next but depends on the Voice, apparently.

Thanks and best
Elise

Thanks all,

There are a few sensitivities here including matters before the court. This said, I think there is a clear line of contribution we can make on the broader issues, our past activity in the area and our ongoing interest through current investigations.

I support agreeing to on camera and pleased to work on possible talking points.

Scott

Elise given that conduct impacting Indigenous Australians is one of our enduring priorities I think it is worth doing the interview on camera.

As you are aware we continue to be named in the hearings of the Standing Parliamentary looking at these issues.

Thanks Delia. To clarify, this would not be in relation to anything before the Courts, i.e. Birubi.

While my instincts are to agree to do an on camera, however, given that we're in court, I'd take advice from Wendy on the request. As we've provided backgrounding the need for us to do it is reduced.

Cheers

Hi Scott, Delia

See below from 60 Minutes. Thanks for your time and detailed background you provided yesterday, Scott, it was great.

Delia – Rod is not checking emails for the rest of today so looping you into this request. We were asked to provide background for a forthcoming 60 Minutes story on fake Indigenous art.

All - do you think we should consider this request to speak on camera on the record? We would not have to name the businesses, obviously, but I think it a good opportunity to talk about the type of conduct/practices we find concerning, and send a wider deterrence message.

Hello Elise,

Thanks so much for lining up the chat yesterday with Scott Gregson. Really appreciate it.
