

The Commission recognises that much of the information it gathers when assessing matters is commercially sensitive. Confidentiality, if requested, is respected to the extent possible.

Third party access to confidential information will be granted only with the permission of those who gave the information to the Commission, or upon the order of a court or tribunal. The Commission will, when necessary, defend its policy in the appellate courts.